

Where Do Your State Senate Candidates Stand on Reproductive Rights?

John Miller (D)

John Miller supports a woman's right to choose and believes politicians should not interfere in personal, private decisions.

Miller also supports commonsense policies that would prevent unintended pregnancies and reduce the need for abortion, such as:

- ◆ Increasing access to affordable birth control and emergency contraception; and
- ◆ Supporting medically accurate, age appropriate sex education in public schools.

Tricia Stall (R)

"Tricia Stall is pro-life and was endorsed by Virginia Society of Human Life (VSHL) and Kellie McHugh, Executive Director, Virginians for Life."
--Tricia Stall's website

Restrictions on choice at the national level mean we must work that much harder to keep choice safe and accessible in Virginia.

The Virginia legislature has great power to restrict reproductive choice, and that's why this year, the bottom line is clear:

ELECTIONS MATTER.

Please vote Tuesday, November 6. Click here to find your polling place.