

Where Do Your State Senate Candidates Stand on Reproductive Rights?

Janet Oleszek (D)

Janet Oleszek supports a woman's right to choose and believes politicians should not interfere in personal, private decisions.

Oleszek also supports commonsense policies that would prevent unintended pregnancies and reduce the need for abortion, such as:

- ◆ Increasing access to affordable birth control and emergency contraception; and
- ◆ Supporting medically accurate, age appropriate sex education in public schools.

Ken Cuccinelli (R)

Ken Cuccinelli is a fierce opponent of the right to choose. He wants to outlaw abortion and even some forms of contraception. (HB2797, 2007)

He has sponsored legislation that would force many of Virginia's reproductive health clinics to close due to overregulation. (SB146, 2004)

He refuses to support legislation that would prevent unintended pregnancy and reduce the need for abortion. (SB1104, 2003)

Restrictions on choice at the national level mean we must work that much harder to keep choice safe and accessible in Virginia.

The Virginia legislature has great power to restrict reproductive choice, and that's why this year, the bottom line is clear:

ELECTIONS MATTER.
